

Scope module - Overview

Managing the scope

The Scope module is a customizable list of tasks including custom field configuration and Work Breakdown Structure just like the Gantt and Board modules.

One of the differences compared to the Gantt module is the lack of the timeline with tasks bars which provides more space for additional information available in Jira. Another difference is the inline editing of the Summary and Number fields.

You can create and save your own views directly using the interface. The view configuration does not impact any other module as it is totally independent.
